EIGHT YEAR OLD JACK THANKS HIS SCHOOL MATES

Dear Mr. Brodie—

I am writing to thank you for the gifts to my brother, myself which was very nice. I am going to school here and in the big boys. I have been in St. Paul's Church. It is a fine big building. We saw the 90th Battalion colors hanging in there and quite a lot of other old flags and big statues of great statesmen and tablets in memorial of fallen heroes.

Kind remembrance to you and the boys.

From your late pupil

Jack Alderman.

This is an echo of the sending of gifts last Xmas from the Wainwright scholars to all the kiddies of this locality.

SMALL TURNOUT GREET SPEAKERS AT INSTITUTE MEET

On March 31st at the council chamber a splendid meeting was held by the Local Women's Institute. Mr. Lamb addressed the ladies on many topics of vital interest on the bills recently passed and those pending which were of greatest interest and moment to women, children and the protection of the home.

The women's dowry bill in fact, neglected children, bill Pool-room and Tobacco acts were all made clear and perhaps of greatest was a short talk on the Rural Free Hospital bill. After Mr. Lamb, the Franchise bill was discussed by Mr. Warner, who gave new food for thought and urged the women to master political questions in their usual quick decisive manner. These were both speeches of importance and interest to women, and the only regret is that the turnout was scarcely worthy of so good a cause however, the weather was an excuse for those who had so far to drive. Another similar meeting will be held in a few weeks, with all ladies asked to kindly attend.

The Merchants Bank of Canada has opened a branch at Irma with Mr. W. H. Madden as manager.

Don't forget the fire Brigade meeting tomorrow evening (Thursday) everybody attend.

CAFFEY TROUPE EARNED $700.00 FOR RELIEF FUNDS.

Local Audience Well Satisfied With Entertainment

A comfortably filled house greeted the initial appearance of the McCaffery Dramatic Troupe before a Wainwright audience on the evening of Thursday last.

Two humorous sketches of English life constituted the bulk of the programme.

In the first of these, A Rough Diamond, Mrs. Lees, playing in the title role, and Mr. Herbert Spencer as "Cousin Joe," were particularly entertaining. The scene where these two are hobnobbing over old times, and are carried by their enthusiasm into rather compromising situation was well worked up to its embarrassing denouement.

In "Dandelions Dodge" these artists again well sustained their parts, while the thankless role of the "Villain" was faithfully portrayed by Mr. Smith Jr. Miss Alwood, Mr. Smith Sr. and Mr. R. J. Spencer in their respective parts ably supported the leading characters. The musical numbers by local talent were thoroughly appreciated. Both Mrs. Lush and Miss Strang were heartily encored.

At the close of a vote of thanks was moved by Mayor Greer and seconded by Dr. Little to be extended to all assisting in the entertainment and especially to the McCaffery Dramatic Troupe for the enjoyable programme. These ladies and gentlemen under management of Mr. Lee have already earned for various relief funds connected with the war, about seven hundred dollars by their entertainments. Theirs is truly a patriotic service as they themselves gain nothing from it but the satisfaction of "doing their bit."

God Save the King, rendered by the Wainwright Down Band which had given excellent selections between the acts closed the performance. The thanks of the Fund committee are due to the proprietors of the Theatre who gave a reduction on the hire of the hall for ten dollars and Mr. Mitchell who able handled the curtains.

Miss Margaret Henry and Mrs. W. Pae of Thornton Ont. sisters of Mrs. Munn and Mrs. Swenerton are visiting them at the present time.

In the afternoon at 4 o'clock there will be a meeting for women in the Presbyterian church the subject being "The Queen of the Home" In the evening there will be a big mass meeting for everybody in the Elite Theatre and the subject to be taken by Mr. Barton will be "The successful Fool" Do not miss the opportunity to attend these splendid meetings.

GREAT INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN SPECIAL MEETINGS

The special union meetings held by H. Arthur Barton are arousing much interest. The Sunday gatherings were well attended especially the evening meeting in the Elite Theatre. The subject taken in the morning at the Methodist Church was "The Divine Law of Sympathy" at the men's meeting in the Elite Theatre "The man for our times," and at the evening meeting in the theatre "Thinking Black, White, or Grey." Rev R. K. Swenerton presided at the meeting and led the singing. Mayor Greer was on the platform and made some excellent remarks in his usual, able manner. He commented favorably on the address of Arthur Barton and his work in the town.

Miss Parsons sang a solo "My Task" She was in fine voice and sang with sympathy and splendid effect. The address of Mr. Barton on the sovereignty of thought was of a remarkably able kind and held the closest attention of the large audience from start to finish. There was much dramatic power, a mingling of choice humor and altogether the effect was most telling and should result in helping many a life. The following is a synopsis of his remarks:

"The text was Provs. 23:7. 'As he thinketh within himself so is he.' Compared with nature's forces man is small paltry but his power of thought enables him to make nature his servant. As naturalisms spring from seed, so character springs from thought. Are your thoughts black, white or grey? The Christian life demands not only that our deeds and words be Christ-controlled but we must get the spirit of Christ into our thinking. What we habitually live in our thought we ultimately put out into our everyday deeds. There are men who are continually thinking failure, they therefore fail before their business goes to wreck or their crop is half-ruined.

We attract what we earnestly desire, also what we fear. The dread of many physical ailments helps to bring them on. By

City Ways for

Country Stores
Country Merchant Can Utilize City Store Methods to Good Advantage

The department store draws a fine trade from the country, and the country store, in turn, draws a fine trade from the city. The country store, however, is not so well equipped as the city store, and it is not so well situated. It is not so well equipped as the city store, and it is not so well situated. It is not so well equipped as the city store, and it is not so well situated.

They also have a keen eye for the legitimate bargain as it occurs in every store through stock moving. Again, they are attracted even more by the special offers of new merchandise in this department, and the store appeals to them most by the fact that something is always happening in merchandise.

Much has been said about the advantages of the city store, and in competition with city stores, and mail-order houses. Probably the difficulty is that the country store has not been taught to watch it as a place where something is always happening in merchandise. The country merchant gets in goods from week to week. But his customers usually have to wait for themselves what is new in ribbons, shoes, crockery or breakfast foods because he does not have the time to go to the city store.

From time to time the country merchant could get a list of the merchandise and close them out at cut prices, turning them into money. The city store, however, does not do this. It is not so well equipped as the city store, and it is not so well situated. It is not so well equipped as the city store, and it is not so well situated.

City stores use merchandise as an attraction—a news. They draw customers by the use of the latest in ribbons, shoes, crockery or breakfast foods because he does not have the time to go to the city store.

The country merchant cannot compete with the city store. He has to wait for himself what is new in ribbons, shoes, crockery or breakfast foods because he does not have the time to go to the city store.

If the United States Congress should pass daylight saving measures, it would be equally beneficial to the whole of Canada. The measure is so desirable that it should be made a law of the land. Re-Writing World Law
Cyrus Townsend Brady in the New York Times

Do we wish Germany or England and France to draw up the new code? We know perfectly well what Germany's views are upon international law. They are based upon the principle of expediency. Their vocabulary is "might makes right."

The working out of this principle as seen in invaded, outraged, ravaged, deported Belgium; in the wreckage of Serbia; in the persecution of Christian Armenia by Mohammedan Turkey; in the death in every circumstance of horror and shame of 600,000 peaceful, orderly people in Asia Minor; in the concentration of as many more in pestilential camps where they starve, contract disease and die. Do we wish international law written in these terms?

The victory of England and France and their allies will mean a new international law in which every prescription, merciful and humane, of the old law will be re-written, and many more added. In the re-writing of this new law, should it be devoted upon these powers, we will have the aid of the most powerful law written in terms of civilization and humanity and the righteousness which is of God world almost worth the awful expenditure of blood and treasure. For such a code of law it would be possible to organize an international police force which could compel would be recalled to the world.

Which group of powers do we desire to see? We desire international law written in these terms.

There is no poisonous ingredient in this law. It can be used without danger of injury to the world. It can be used without danger of injury to the world. It can be used without danger of injury to the world.

The Outlook's Reasoning
Germany's ultimatum at the opening of the war was due to the wantonness of power and arrogance. German aggression was not a necessary evil. The good opinion of the civilized world has been forfeited and Germany is to use a money saying, "I am a law to the world."

Good Old Times
In the Days When Luxuries Were Not Temptations Were Few

Scarcity of potatoes makes us think of times long ago when the all-important tuber was known only to American Indians and wild syne of other wild animals that grubbed it. Our countrymen got along without potatoes, corn, peaches, turkey, rice, bananas, oranges, lemons, sugar, tea, chocolate, bon-bons, no cigarettes in those days! No tea or coffee. Was there no good butter made of us get along with a nut of these things, too; but our ancestors were not tantalized by the sight of them. They had no refrigerating shop windows, with impossible prices ticketed on them. There were no such things as eggs and milk were probably almost free. London Advertiser.

A man travelling in Maine met a middle-aged farmer, who said his father, ninety years old, still on the farm where he was born. "Ninety years old, eh?" "Yes, sir, he is." "Is his health good?" "Taint much now. He's been com plain' for a few months back."

"What's the matter with him?" "I dunno; sometimes I think farm in don't agree with him."

The Other End
The Judge to whom a Chicago woman had applied for a divorce looked sternly at the applicant and addressed her thus: "You say you want a divorce because your married life is one long series of fights. You don't look it."

"No, your Honor," said the applicant, "but you ought to see my husband."

Peasants are Saving Money and Ris ing in the World

It is beyond question that the Russian peasant, who constitutes 80 per cent of the population of Russia, has now in his hands an unprecedented amount of money, the result of more employment, much higher wages than ever before paid, and a new habit of saving forced upon him by the cutting off of his former expenditures of vodka, and by a shortage in the supply of things he needs for his farming and household operations.

He is waiting for a chance to spend his savings for what he really needs. He buys a writer in "Roads." Those savings aggregate hundreds of millions of dollars. Buying farm machinery is said to be the one "great outlet" for them. The writer continues:

It should be considered that when a man has accumulated an unexpectedly large amount of money, he is greatly excited. It carries on a large portion of it for things he has long wanted, but has been unable to get. The idea of the Russian peasant, in his him on his estate, are mainly restricted to his farm and to his home man. A better house, and especially, better furniture, appeal to him; but like the peasant everywhere else in the world, his first interest is to get more money out of his land.

The importance of machinery in helping him to this result has been strongly brought home to him by a variety of agencies, not the least effective of these being the increased profits of such of his neighbors as have taken themselves out of the communal system of land holding and cultivation, and have contrived to secure modern agricultural machinery. An example of the peasant's appreciation of modern equipment is provided by the agricultural "artels," or unions, which have multiplied in consequence of the farm labor shortage due to the recruiting of the armies. These artels have largely resorted to the use of modern machinery, purchased usually by a group of peasant farmers, who often rent the machines to other farmers not members of the artel.

This expectation of peasant expenditures for farm machines that will be very large in the aggregate is not a new thing. It seems hardly open to contradiction.

It has been found necessary to open in Russia, as rapidly as possible, some 5,000 new branches of the State Savings Bank. Also, parish banks, to be opened to the number of about 2,000. The purpose of these banks is to encourage the peasant to save, and to provide a means of saving for the peasant. The peasant is to be encouraged to save, and to provide a means of saving for the peasant.

What will be a great innovation in banking so far as the bulk of the Russian population is concerned is the proposed introduction by the State Savings Bank of payments by check. This device, so familiar to us, is still strange to most of Russia. There is no doubt that its wide introduction and use in that country will do much to modernize and facilitate the conduct of business in its vast interior.

It is proposed also, to introduce in Russia what is known as the money-box system of savings, on the model of foreign institutions, particularly of the British government savings bank. In issuing these savings boxes to the peasant, the State Savings Bank will be credited with a deposit, which will be credited as a deposit, which will be credited as a deposit.

Canada's "Noble Men"

THE SUMMER HALF-HOLIDAY

IT MAY BE CONSIDERED premature to speak of "Summer or of a "half holiday." Yet remembering the length of time it takes us to arouse ourselves to action we may be pardon-ed for referring to it so early.

It will be remembered that the matter of giving the clerks in our stores, and others whose occupations keep them indoors all the day, was discussed pro and con last year and it was decided not to have the half holiday once a week. The result was a lot of dissatisfied people.

This year with the possibility of having a summer resort within a very short distance of town, namely Mott Lake, it would seem a shame if the town could not decide to "Shut Up Shop" one afternoon a week for a little pleasure and recreation.

"All work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy," is a wise old adage, and our merchants and others might do well to lay it to the heart, and remember that out of a satisfied and recompensed clerk, through a half day holiday jaunt, they can get much better satisfaction, than if he is kept at the grindstone all the week and all the year around.

The only apology we have to offer for referring to this so soon is that already several have been discussing the matter with the STAR, who expressed the hope that their suggestion would find its way to public attention. We will gladly, through the column "Letters to the Editor" give space for a discussion of the question.

SPECIAL WAR TAX RESULTS EXCEED EXPECTATIONS

RECEIPTS FROM THE SPECIAL WAR TAXATION, enacted shortly after the outbreak of war, have so far greatly exceeded expectations. Under the Special War Taxation Act the Canadian banking institutions are obliged to contribute one million dollars annually to the country's revenue, and loan, trust and insurance companies are also taxed for substantial amounts. Other special levies such as the postal war tax, stamp tax on drafts and cheques, and the tax on railway tickets have also produced large sums for the public treasury.

The Excise Profits Tax has proven particularly successful and returns from this source have been much beyond what Mr. Thomas White first estimated. When he imposed this tax the Finance Minister estimated it would produce about thirty-five million dollars during the full period of three years over which it extends—an average of twelve million dollars yearly.
The tax being retroactive, this year's taxation was collected upon the accounting period corresponding roughly to the first year of the war. At that time business was very much depressed and dislocated. Sub-normal business conditions notwithstanding, it is estimated that the tax will produce for this first year period at least fourteen million dollars, and possibly fifteen million. The tax for the year 1916 will yield the enormous sum of between twenty and twenty-five million dollars. The first two years of the taxation will thus produce the amount equal to what it was estimated would be secured in the three years.
The third year, 1917, is expected to produce another twenty-five million dollars. The final results will thus be almost double the original estimate.

IT WILL HASTEN END OF WAR

THE NEW GOVERNMENT of Russia, which is vested for the present, in the hands of a committee of the Duma, appears to be in command of the situation and the danger of radical excess on the one side and re-action on the other is passing away. It is agreed that the revolution has consolidated the alliance with the other entente powers. "This alliance," says Mitukoff, minister of foreign affairs, "will become still more cordial and sincere. Henceforth all rumors of a separate peace must vanish once for all."

Premier Lloyd George, in a telegram sent to the new Russian Premier Luoff expressed the opinion that the charge was the greatest service which the Russian people had yet rendered to the cause for which the allied people had been fighting. "It is," he said, "that, through the war the principle of liberty, which is the only safe guard of peace."
